Evan Douglis will discuss his unique and cutting-edge research into self-generative systems, membrane technology, contemporary fabrication techniques, and multi-media installations. As the principal of Evan Douglis + Associates, an architecture and interdisciplinary design firm, he is committed to the advancement of biological mimesis as a new modern strategy for design.

Mr. Douglis will share his academic experience and professional development as an architect, designer, and educator through the visual presentation of his work.
